

Electrolysis Information

Electrolysis is still the only way to permanently remove hair. This technique, developed 130 years ago, has managed to adapt to and benefit from the most advanced technologies. Electrolysis is not, however, a one-shot deal. It is a series of treatments. The success of the treatments depends on the client's cooperation with the treatment schedule recommended by his or her electrologist. If you are someone who wants an effective, permanent hair removal treatment, opt for electrolysis.

The Process

A small filament is inserted into the hair follicle, which is an already existing opening, and a small amount of current is applied which destroys the cells that cause hair growth. The client will feel some heat but this heat is tolerable thanks to the improvements in the latest technologies.
